King Abdullah Bin Abdul Aziz

The First International Conference on Assessment & Evaluation

Dr. Faisal bin Abdullah Al-Mishari Al Saud

President, National Center for Assessment in Higher Education
Conference General Director

Educational development goes hand in hand with advances in assessment and evaluation. This can be attributed to the significance of assessment in the maintenance of quality control in assuring the ongoing effectiveness of educational systems and monitoring performance in the light of internationally established benchmarks.

The considerable attention given to the role of assessment in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia led to the establishment of the National Center for Assessment in Higher Education (NCAHE) in 2001. After 11 years of diligent work, the Center has reached an internationally recognized status. During such a short period of time, the Center has developed several tests ranging from academic to language to licensures. They all serve the needed objectives of education.

The Center wishes to spare no effort in the pursuit of ongoing educational development by conducting research to further enhance that progress. As part of that effort, the Center has decided to sponsor an international conference for assessment and evaluation that will be held periodically to attract interested individuals and organizations to contribute to the field by promoting research and studies.

Given the diversity of issues in the field, it is fitting to focus on one aspect of assessment and evaluation, namely Admission Criteria in Institutions of Higher Education. Establishing and standardizing such criteria in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia was the focal task with which the Center was originally commissioned. It seems appropriate, therefore, to begin this series of International Conferences with that same objective.

I look forward to a successful conference, and I thank all scientists and researchers who accepted our invitation. Their participation is indeed a primary success of the conference.

Goals of the Conference

1. Enriching academic research on admission tests and their criteria.
2. Improving the academic and professional aspects of personnel in the field of admission testing.
3. Educating society about the criteria of admission tests.
4. Surveying the best international practices in admission criteria.
5. Involving international experts in research related to local needs of the NCAHE in Saudi Arabia.

The First International Conference on Assessment & Evaluation

Conference Themes

1. Admission Test: theoretical bases and construction steps

- Psychological and educational foundations of admission tests.
- Psychometric properties in tests.
- Effects of the types of items on test construction and validity.
- Theoretical and practical foundations for selecting suitable assessment forms to build admission tests.

2. Scoring and Analyzing Tests

- Techniques used in scoring and analyzing tests.
- Preparing test reports.

3. Test Administration

- Issues in test administration.
- Test security.
- Technology in test applications.
- Cheating.
- Training and preparation for the tests.

4. International Practices in Admission Criteria

- (Invited Papers only)

5. Admission Tests and the Society
